NB and CAVEAT : This is a rough, and possibly misguided, attempt at aligning the chakras and Adjutants. As the seven chakras are energy nodes that clearly behave in a circuit-like manner, the hypothesis is that they may play a role as receptors of the Adjutants. If I could demonstrate that the 5 “lower” chakras are present in animal life, this hypothesis would be strengthened, although it would still remain a hypothesis. Beyond this consultation, I also intend to consult an authority, Moussa Ndyaye, on this matter.

QUESTION : Why is this potentially useful ? ANSWER : To the same degree as a better understanding of the Adjutants (mindal energy) is useful, no more, no less. We know that experienced yogis can activate and to a degree, manipulate, the energy fields of the chakras – so, there is enough potential payback to this research to make it worthwhile. I’ll keep everyone posted.
